

BUAD 502: MANAGING & LEADING OTHERS

The course introduces students to core concepts in maximizing their ability to positively influence others were allowing their teams to maximize their potential by addressing the human side of enterprise. The student will learn knowledge in leadership and management skills. They will develop leadership skills in developing a vision, how to align the organization behind the idea, creating a motivating environment, and techniques on building effective organizational performance for individual and group settings within their business.

Credits: 3

Department: Business