

POLS 205: POLITICAL PARTIES & INTEREST GROUPS

Students examine the nature of political parties and interest groups and the role they play in American politics, including analysis of platforms, purposes, strategies and influence in elections and policymaking. Students engage in writing assignments, hands-on experiments, group exercises, and oral presentations, including a mock political convention.

Credits: 3

Department: Public Policy