

PSYC 281: PSYC OF GLOBAL SOCIAL JUSTICE (I)

This May Term offering will explore issues of social justice through the lens of social psychology, with a strong emphasis on international perspectives, organizations and policies. Readings include recent empirical social psychological literature on the major themes of this course to include: human rights, human trafficking and prostitution, refugee experiences and issues, labor laws and rights, origins and responses to mass violence, and peace and conflict resolution.

Credits: 3

Department: Psychology