

ED 336: COMPARATIVE EDUCATION (IW)

This course examines historical, cultural, political, and economic forces that shape education in the United States and in international settings. We will explore the relationship between education, culture, and society in the global context. Students will critically reflect upon their own educational experiences and their perspectives and beliefs about education. Students will compare aspects of the U.S. education system to those aspects in an international setting of their choice.

Credits: 3

Department: Education