

PTH 703: PATHOPHYSIOLOGY

This course will cover the pathological processes related to the immune system, and neoplasia in general. An overview of the most clinically significant diseases for the various body systems including a description of causes, epidemiology, pathophysiology, and clinical manifestations for the health care professional will be covered.

Credits: 3

Department: Physical Therapy